Gifford Pinchot's Office at Grey Towers.

The mission of the Grey Towers Heritage Association (GTHA) is to assist in education, improvements, promotion and conservation at Grey Towers National Historic Site, in Milford, PA.

ABOUT GREY TOWERS

Grey Towers was built in 1886 by James and Mary Pinchot as a summer retreat. It was James who first recognized the reckless destruction of natural resources that was overtaking the nation in the 19th century. James encouraged his eldest son Gifford to consider a career in forestry, thus introducing the idea of conservation to America.

Gifford Pinchot went on to establish and serve as the first Chief of the US Forest Service, and he was twice elected Governor of Pennsylvania. Between family, friends and political associates, Grey Towers was always bustling with activity and was central to advancing the Pinchots' social, political and conservation ideals. In 1963 the Pinchot family donated Grey Towers and its surrounding 102 acres to the US Forest Service.

GTHA supports the efforts of the US Forest Service to preserve and maintain the estate's historic integrity, to continue the tradition of Pinchot hospitality and to strengthen Grey Towers' connection to our community. GTHA helps support public programs that tell the interesting story of how one family helped shape our nation's thinking about conservation.

- Conservation and arts programs
- Musical, visual and literary events
- Public walks and talks
- Interpretive mansion tours
- Conservation education, schools and youth programs

JOIN US

Though originally a private home, Grey Towers has always had a very public use. The generous gift of the mansion and its surrounding acreage by the Pinchot family to the American public ensures that this tradition continues for future generations.

We invite you to join Grey Towers Heritage Association in our partnership with the US Forest Service at Grey Towers National Historic Site to continue the legacy of one of America's most influential families and their unique and beautiful home.
